CLOSING THE NET ON IMPUNITY

Five years of conflict, hundreds of thousands of dead. In Syria, large-scale war crimes are committed in all impunity. The international community has proved incapable to prevent the bombing of humanitarian convoys and medical facilities, the starvation of civilians and the use of chemical weapons.

Effective prosecution of these crimes has been repeatedly impeded at the international level: the idea of a hybrid tribunal has never seen the light of day, while referral to the International Criminal Court (ICC) has been vetoed by China and Russia, both permanent members of the United Nations Security Council.

Is this synonymous with a judicial deadlock for victims? Not necessarily, as justice is taking an audacious path: universal jurisdiction.

Throughout 2016, authorities in Austria, Finland, France, Germany and Sweden have brought charges for alleged crimes in Syria. Investigations are ongoing in Norway, Switzerland and The Netherlands. Last year alone, 11 Syrian cases have seen significant judicial advances, including 3 convictions for war crimes.

The movement is here to stay

The advances of universal jurisdiction go beyond crimes committed in Syria. In 2016, 13 countries opened 47 cases based on the principle – 7 more than the previous year, and 10 more than in 2014. Despite constant attacks, universal jurisdiction continues to be a significant tool in the fight against impunity. For victims, it is often the only way to justice.

While this tendency is very encouraging, we cannot rest on our laurels. If 47 suspects were investigated, prosecuted or judged in 2016, how many more are walking free? And while 11 Syrian suspects were arrested or prosecuted in 2016, all of them were low-to mid-level perpetrators. High-ranking suspects predominantly remain protected by powerful political allies. These challenges will not be overcome until specialised units in charge of these cases receive sufficient means.

The coming years will bring great opportunities for domestic courts to step up their efforts and assert their jurisdiction. The International Criminal Tribunals have established a transition mechanism (MICT) to help national jurisdictions take over the prosecution of international crimes committed in the former Yugoslavia and in Rwanda. The recently created mechanism on crimes committed in Syria will have a similar mission. The establishment of these institutions sends a strong signal to domestic jurisdictions worldwide: closing the net on impunity is in your hands.

FRANCO DICTATORSHIP CASE

Context

Ongoing proceedings in Argentina against former Spanish officials and other actors of the Franco dictatorship for alleged serious crimes under international law committed in Spain between 1936 and 1977.

Suspects

Former Spanish officials and other actors of the Franco dictatorship (including González Pacheco, former police officer, Jesús Muñecas Aguilar, former captain of the civil guard and former government ministers Rodolfo Martín Villa and Jose Utrera Molina)

Country of residence of suspects

Spain

Charges

Crimes against humanity, including torture, extrajudicial killings and enforced disappearances

Developments in 2016

On 19 January 2016, the corpse of Timoteo Mendieta was exhumed. The mass grave contained approximately 22 bodies. Bone and teeth samples from the skeletons, along with saliva swabs from relatives, were sent to Argentina to be tested in order to establish their identities. Timoteo Mendieta's remains were not identified in this mass grave. Further exhumations are expected to take place.

The initial case filed on 14 April 2010 has been expanded to include additional complaints. An international women's organisation based in Spain, Women's Link Worldwide, filed a complaint with the Argentinean court on 16 March 2016, calling for the investigation into systematic gender-based crimes committed against women during the Franco regime.

In August 2016, Judge Servini de Cubría opened an investigation into the death of Spanish poet Federico García Lorca, pursuant to a complaint filed by the Spanish Association for the Recuperation of Historical Memory (Asociación para la Recuperación de la Memoria Histórica). García Lorca is believed to have been executed during the Civil War in 1936.

Current status

Under investigation

Procedure in Spain

In December 2006, the Spanish investigating judge Baltasar Garzón opened an investigation into allegations of crimes against humanity committed during the Franco dictatorship. In October 2008, he ruled that the 1977 Spanish law granting amnesty for crimes committed during the Franco dictatorship did not apply owing to the nature of the crimes. However, the Supreme Court overturned this decision, while Judge Baltasar

Garzón was judged for prevarication for his alleged unfair interpretation of the amnesty law. He was finally acquitted but the amnesty law remains applicable, and the crimes committed by the Franco dictatorship cannot be investigated or prosecuted in Spain.

Procedure in Argentina

On 14 April 2010, Spanish and Argentinean human rights organisations filed a criminal complaint with the Argentinean investigating judge Servini de Cubría on behalf of Spanish victims. On 18 September 2013, the Argentinean judge issued arrest warrants against four former officials of the Franco dictatorship (including González Pacheco and Jesús Muñecas Aguilar) and requested their extradition for crimes against humanity, including acts of torture allegedly committed in Spain between July 1936 and June 1977.

On 24 April 2014, the Spanish National Court (Audiencia Nacional, Sala de lo Penal) rejected an extradition request issued on 18 September 2013 by Judge Servini de Cubría against González Pacheco and Jesús Muñecas Aguilar. On 30 October 2014, notwithstanding the Court's decision, the Argentinean investigating judge issued detention orders against twenty of the accused in order to request their extradition to Argentina.

In 2015, the Argentinean judge Servini de Cubría sent a second rogatory commission to the local tribunal of Guadalajara in Spain, requesting the exhumation of the corpse of Timoteo Mendieta, who was reportedly executed in 1939. It also provided for a DNA test of his daughter, Ascensión Mendieta, victim and plaintiff in the case. On 24 November 2015, the Tribunal of Guadalajara authorized the exhumation which started on 19 January 2016..

It is alleged that he helped Charles Taylor and the RUF to export the diamonds outside the country.

Procedure

In January 2011, citizens of Sierra Leone who had been forced to work in the mines during the civil war filed a complaint in Brussels against Michel Desaeleer, who was then living in the United States. The competent Belgian authorities opened an investigation into the complaint, leading to the issuing of a European arrest warrant targeting Michel Desaeleer.

On 28 August 2015, Michel Desaeleer was arrested in Malaga in Spain, following the European Arrest Warrant issued against him by the Belgian authorities. Abdelkader Mohamed (who has both Algerian and French citizenship) and Hocine Mohamed (Algerian citizenship), allegedly led the Relizane militia (Group of Self-Defense) during the Algerian civil war.

Country of residence of suspects

France

Charges

Developments in 2016

On 20 January 2016, the Investigation Chamber of the Court of Appeal in Nîmes (Chambre de l'instruction de la Cour d'Appel de Nîmes) repealed the investigating judge's decision of 26 December 2014 to send Hocine and Abdelkader Mohamed for trial. The civil parties appealed this decision before the French Supreme Court (Cour de Cassation).

Current status

Case dismissed; ongoing appeal

Facts

In the 1990s, Algeria was in the throes of a very violent internal armed conflict, between state-armed militias and armed Islamic groups. Between 1993 and 1994, the Algerian authorities started to arm militias, called "Self-Defense groups" to fight the armed opposition. These militias allegedly committed numerous abuses on the civilian population, including extrajudicial killings, torture, rapes and enforced disappearances.

Led by the Mohamed brothers, the Relizane Group of Self-Defense is allegedly responsible for more than one hundred cases of extrajudicial killings and two hundred and eight cases of enforced disappearances committed in the province of Relizane between 1994 and 1998.

Procedure

On 10 October 2003, FIDH and its member organization in France, the Ligue des Droits de l'Homme (LDH) filed a complaint for torture and crimes against humanity before the Office of the Prosecutor with the Nîmes Tribunal (Tribunal de Grande Instance de Nîmes). On 11 December 2003, the Tribunal launched an investigation for crimes of torture.

On 29 March 2004, the Mohamed brothers were arrested, indicted and placed in custody. On 30 March 2004, they were released and placed under judicial surveillance.

On 18 June 2004, the investigating judge within the Nîmes Tribunal mandated an international rogatory commission to investigate the crimes committed in Algeria. On 19 July 2005, the Algerian authorities refused to collaborate with the investigating judge. Between 2006 and 2013, the investigation nevertheless continued, and confrontations between the victims and the accused were organized. In July 2013, the Office of the Prosecutor at the Nîmes Tribunal called for the Mohamed brother's case to be referred to the Criminal Court.

On 26 December 2014, the investigating judge of the Nîmes Tribunal issued a final order to bring the two accused to trial before the Nîmes Criminal Court (Cour d'Assises de Nîmes). The defendants appealed this decision. On 29 July 2015, the Chief Prosecutor called on the investigating chamber to order a complementary investigation into the case.

In October 2010, Tito Barahira was indicted by the National Public Prosecution Authority (NPPA) in Rwanda for his alleged participation in the genocide and for alleged incitement to commit genocide. Pursuant to an arrest warrant issued in Rwanda, he was arrested on 3 April 2013 in Toulouse (France). However, the French authorities denied the Rwandan extradition request and the two cases were joined on 16 July 2013. Fourteen civil parties have joined the case.

On 13 May 2014, the Office of the Prosecutor at the Paris Tribunal (Tribunal de Grande Instance de Paris) sought the prosecution of Octavien Ngenzi and Tito Barahira before the Paris Criminal Court (Cour d'Assises de Paris). ## NORBERT DABIRA

Context

Ongoing proceedings before the French specialized unit for the prosecution of genocide, crimes against humanity, war crimes and torture within the Paris Tribunal (hereinafter "the specialized unit") for alleged crimes committed in Brazzaville, Republic of the Congo, in 1999.

Suspects

Congolese General, Overall Superintendent of the Armed Forces and the Gendarmerie

Country of residence of suspects

France

Charges

Torture and crimes against humanity

Developments in 2016

On Friday 13 May 2016, a hearing on a request submitted by the defence for the annulment of Norbert Dabira's interrogation of 5 December 2014 was held before the Paris criminal procedural Chamber ("Chambre de l'instruction de la Cour d'Appel de Paris"). The defence argued that the investigating magistrate had violated his right to remain silent.

On 3 June 2016, the Chamber dismissed Norbert Dabira's request. The investigation is ongoing.

Current status

Indicted; under investigation

Facts

During the 1998-1999 internal armed conflict in the Democratic Republic of the Congo (DRC), the governments of Congo and the DRC and the High Commissioner for Refugees reached an agreement aimed at facilitating the voluntary repatriation of Congolese civilians who had been forced into exile by the violence.

Between 5 and 14 May 1999, 6599 refugees from Kinshasa, voluntarily crossed the River Congo, towards Brazzaville Beach. These refugees were separated into groups: soldiers, women, and able-bodied men. The latter were taken out of the line and transferred to secret locations from which they disappeared.

Procedure in Congo

A trial began before the Brazzaville Criminal Court on 19 July 2005. On 17 August 2005, after a reportedly flawed process, the fifteen accused were found not guilty. The judge recognized, however, the disappearances of more than eighty-five people and ordered the Congolese government to pay reparation to the eligible claimants of each missing person whose name figured on a list established by the High Commissioner for Refugees.

Procedure in France

FIDH and its member organizations in France the Ligue des droits de l'homme (LDH) and in DRC (the Observatoire congolais des droits de l'Homme) filed a complaint on 5 December 2001 against Norbert Dabira and other high profile officials, including President Denis Sassou Nguesso and Minister of the Interior Pierre Oba. An investigation was opened in January 2002 for crimes against humanity, torture and enforced disappearances.

Norbert Dabira was arrested in May 2002 and interrogated by the investigating judges on 16 September 2002. Nonetheless, in November 2004, the President of the Paris criminal procedural Chamber suspended the investigation. The civil party appealed this decision before the French Supreme Court (Cour de Cassation) which annulled this decision and reopened the investigation on 10 January 2007.

On 22 August 2013, Norbert Dabira was again arrested while travelling in France. He was indicted for crimes against humanity and placed under judicial supervision. On 9 October 2014, the Paris criminal procedural Chamber confirmed the indictment of Norbert Dabira for crimes against humanity. On 5 December 2014, he was interrogated by the investigating judge.

AMESYS CASE

Context

Ongoing proceedings before the French specialized unit for the prosecution of genocide, crimes against humanity, war crimes and torture within the Paris Tribunal (hereinafter "the specialized unit") for allegedly aiding and abetting crimes of torture committed in Libya during the Muammar Gaddafi regime (from 1969 to 2011)

Suspects

French company AMESYS

Country of residence of suspects

France

Charges

Aiding and abetting acts of torture, by selling surveillance material to the Muammar Gaddafi regime in Libya

Developments in 2016

The judicial investigation is still ongoing. In March 2016 it was revealed that new evidence – consisting of dozens of documents from Muammar Gaddafi's security services – had come to light, reportedly showing the regime's extensive use of the surveillance technologies provided by AMESYS to track, arrest, and torture political opposition.

Current status

Under investigation

Facts

In 2007, AMESYS signed a contract with the Government of Libya to provide surveillance technologies for the purposes of intercepting communication, processing data and analysis. These materials allegedly allowed the Muammar Gaddafi regime to repress the opposition and to commit serious forms of human rights abuse.

Procedure

On 19 October 2011, FIDH and its member organization in France, the Ligue des Droits de l'Homme (LDH), launched a criminal complaint as civil parties before the investigating judge at the Paris Tribunal (Tribunal de Grand Instance de Paris) against AMESYS and its management, denouncing their alleged role as accomplices in acts of torture and other cruel, inhumane or degrading treatment, on the basis of universal jurisdiction.

On 26 March 2012, the Office of the Prosecutor at the Paris Tribunal issued an order not to open a criminal investigation, arguing that there were insufficient grounds to open an investigation. However, the investigating judge of the specialized unit decided on 23 May 2012 to open a formal criminal investigation. On 15 January 2013, the Paris Court of Appeal (Cour d'Appel de Paris) decided to allow the investigation to be opened. In January 2013, five Libyan victims joined the proceedings as civil parties. They were heard in June and July 2013 by the specialized unit. Another Libyan victim joined the case and was heard by the investigating judge on 11 December 2015.

PASSIVE PERSONALITY: THE GUANTANAMO CASE

Context

Ongoing proceedings in France against former Guantanamo commander Geoffrey Miller and other unknown perpetrators for alleged torture committed against French citizens at the US detention centre in Guantanamo Bay, Cuba.

Suspect

Former Guantanamo Commander Geoffrey Miller and other unknown US officials

Country of residence of suspects

United States of America (USA)

Charges

Torture

Developments in 2016

On 20 January 2016, the investigating judge of the Paris Tribunal (Tribunal de Grande Instance de Paris) issued a subpoena requesting Geoffrey Miller to appear before the judge on 1 March 2016, regarding his alleged involvement in torture committed against Guantanamo Bay detainees. However, Geoffrey Miller failed to appear before the judge. On 20 July 2016, the claimants' lawyer requested that an international arrest warrant be issued against Geoffrey Miller.

Current status

Under investigation

Facts

Mourad Benchellali, Nizar Sassi and Khaled Ben Mustapha are French citizens who were detained at Guantanamo between 2002 and 2004-2005 where they were subjected to physical and psychological abuse. Geoffrey Miller was commander of the Joint Task Force Guantanamo and reportedly oversaw interrogations and detainee treatment during the plaintiffs' detention.

Procedure

In November 2002, a criminal complaint and a claim for damages were filed in France in connection with the arrest, abduction, detention, false imprisonment and arbitrary detention of Mourad Benchellali and Nizar Sassi. Investigatory proceedings were opened in June 2005. The scope of the investigation was later expanded to include torture allegations submitted by the plaintiffs after their release from Guantanamo, and to include both the criminal complaint and civil claim brought by the third plaintiff, Khaled Ben Mustapha.

In January 2012, the investigating judge sent an international rogatory commission to the United States requesting that the US authorities conduct – in the presence of French officials – investigations into the case and question any persons who had contact with the plaintiffs during their detention at Guantanamo.

After this request and several follow-up reminders were ignored by the United States, the plaintiffs filed a motion in February 2014 requesting that the investigating judges summon General Miller for questioning. The request was initially denied. On 2 April 2015, the Paris Court of Appeal reversed this decision, ruling that General Miller must be summoned to give evidence on the acts in question and his role in the treatment of detainees at Guantanamo.

SYRIA : INVESTIGATIONS STILL ONGOING

A former photographer – codenamed Caesar – within the military police of the Syrian regime sought refuge in Europe after fleeing Syria with thousands of pictures of dead and abused bodies, attesting to the torture committed in the jails of the regime of Bashar Al-Assad. In September 2015, on the basis of these pictures, the French Ministry of Foreign Affairs requested the Paris Prosecutor of the French specialized unit for the prosecution of genocide, crimes against humanity, war crimes and torture within the Paris Tribunal (Tribunal de Grande Instance de Paris) to open a preliminary investigation for crimes against humanity, war crimes and torture. France has jurisdiction over these alleged crimes if one or more of the victims is French or, if a suspect has established his habitual residence on French territory, or, in the case of the crime of torture, if a suspect is located on French territory. Investigations are ongoing.

In early July 2016, Syrian-French national Mustafa Abdul Rahman lodged a criminal complaint with the Paris Tribunal against the regime of Bashar al-Assad, alleging torture, forced disappearance, and homicide. The complaint concerns the death of his brother Hicham, a Syrian doctor, who died in a prison near Damascus at the end of 2014.

On 24 October 2016, another complaint was filed with the Paris Tribunal by Obeida Dabbagh, a Syrian-French national, on behalf of his brother and nephew, Mazen and Patrick Dabbagh, both Syrian-French nationals. Obeida Dabbagh alleged that they were arrested in 2013 in Syria by the Air Force Intelligence Services and brought to the Investigative Branch in Mezze (Damascus). They have been disappeared ever since. A judicial investigation for torture, crimes against humanity, and enforced disappearances has been opened before the French specialized unit for the prosecution of genocide, crimes against humanity, war crimes and torture within the Paris Tribunal

HISSENE HABRE

Context

Ongoing proceedings against the former President of Chad for alleged serious crimes under international law, committed in Chad between 1982 and 1990.

Suspects

President of Chad from 1982 to 1990

Country of residence of suspects

Senegal

Charges

Crimes against humanity, war crimes and systematic use of torture

Developments in 2016

Closing arguments before the Extraordinary African Chambers (EAC) in Senegal took place between 8 and 12 February 2016. On 30 May 2016, the Court found Hissène Habré guilty of war crimes, crimes against humanity, torture and sex crimes, including rape and sexual slavery, and sentenced him to life imprisonment. This decision marks the first time a former head of state has been convicted for such crimes by an African court.

On 10 June 2016, Hissène Habré's defense lawyers filed an appeal against this conviction, arguing that the length of the sentence was too severe as it failed to account for extenuating circumstances. However, the lodging of the appeal had no immediate legal bearing on the ongoing reparation proceedings in favour of the victims of torture, sexual crimes and bereavement.

Accordingly, the main trial chamber of the EAC granted the civil party victims reparations of up to 20 million West African Francs ($33,898) each on 29 July 2016. On 28 September 2016, the African Union appointed the four judges of the EAC's appeals chamber. The appeal trial started on 9 January 2017 and is due to conclude in April 2017.

Current status

Detained in Cape Manuel of Dakar; ongoing appeal

Facts

Hissène Habré was president of Chad from 1982 to 1990, establishing a regime which relied on its intelligence agency, the Directorate of Documentation and Security (DDS), to act as a tool for political repression. Through this agency, the regime committed widespread human rights violations and carried out collective arrests and mass murders, based on ethnic origin. In 1992, the Truth Commission established by Hissène Habré's successor, Idriss Deby, accused Hissène Habré of 40,000 political assassinations and systematic torture.

Procedure in Belgium

On 30 November 2000, victims of Hissène Habré's regime who were living in Belgium filed a complaint against Hissène Habré in Brussels, alleging crimes against humanity, torture, arbitrary detention and enforced disappearances. On 19 September 2005, Judge Daniel Franssen of the District Court of Brussels issued an international arrest warrant against Hissène Habré and requested his extradition to Belgium.

On 15 November 2005, the Senegalese authorities arrested Hissène Habré in Dakar. However, on 25 November 2005, the Dakar Court of Appeal decided that it had no jurisdiction to rule on the extradition request in light of Habré's purported immunity as a former head of state.

Procedure in Senegal

On 26 January 2000, seven victims and one victims association (the Association of the Victims of Crimes and Political Repression [AVCRP] in Chad) filed a complaint against Hissène Habré before the Regional Tribunal of Dakar for acts of torture and crimes against humanity. On 3 February 2000, a Senegalese judge, Demba Kandji, indicted Hissène Habré for torture, barbarous acts and crimes against humanity.

On 4 July 2000, the Dakar Court of Appeal ruled that Senegalese courts could not pursue the charges because the crimes were not committed in Senegal. The victims appealed. On 20 March 2001, the Senegalese Supreme Court (Cour de cassation) confirmed the first instance decision that Senegalese authorities did not have jurisdiction over the case, because the alleged crimes were not committed in Senegal.

Procedure before the EAC

On 2 July 2006, the African Union requested that Senegal prosecute Hissène Habré, to which Senegalese President Abdoulaye Wade agreed. On 31 January 2007, the Senegalese National Assembly adopted a law allowing Senegalese courts to prosecute the crimes with which Hissène Habré is charged, even if committed outside Senegal.

On 16 September 2008, fourteen victims filed a new complaint against Hissène Habré for crimes against humanity and torture before Senegalese jurisdictions. However, from 2008 to 2010, Senegal refused to advance with the case unless it received full funding for the trial. On 20 July 2012, following a submission from Belgium, the International Court of Justice ordered Senegal to either prosecute Hissène Habré or extradite him to Belgium without delay.

On 22 August 2012, Senegal and the African Union signed an agreement which created the EAC within the Senegalese court system, with a mandate of "prosecuting and trying the person or persons mainly responsible for crimes and serious violations of international law, international custom, and international conventions ratified by Chad and committed in Chadian territory during the timeframe starting from 7 June 1982 to 1 December 1990".

On 2 July 2013, the EAC indicted Hissène Habré. In February 2015, following an investigation, the four judges of the EAC ruled that there was sufficient evidence to send Hissène Habré to trial for crimes against humanity, war crimes, and torture. His trial started on 20 July 2015, but was postponed the next day by the judges of the Chamber, because the defense lawyers decided to boycott the trial and did not appear in Court. The President of the EAC decided to appoint three new defense lawyers and gave them 45 days to prepare the case. During 52 days of witness hearings, 98 witnesses, mostly from Chad, were heard. More than 4000 victims registered as civil party.

In parallel, the trial of former Habré-era officials began in Chad on 14 November 2014. On 25 March 2015, the High Court of N'Djamena convicted twenty security agents from Habré's former regime on charges of murder, torture, kidnapping and arbitrary detention, while acquitting four others. In addition, the criminal court ordered the payment of $125 million in reparations, half of which is to be paid by the convicted persons, with the other half by the Chadian government.

THE JESUIT MURDER CASE

Context

Ongoing proceedings against former Salvadoran officials for alleged serious crimes under international law committed in El Salvador during the 1980-1992 internal armed conflict.

Suspects

Seventeen Salvadoran military officials (of the twenty original suspects, one has died and two others have been dismissed from the investigation)

Country of residence of suspects

El Salvador and United States of America (USA)

Charges

Crime against humanity; murder and terrorism

Developments in 2016

On 5 and 6 February 2016, four Salvadorian officials were arrested by the civil national police from El Salvador pursuant to the international arrested warrant issued by the criminal chamber of the Spanish National Court (Audiencia Nacional, Sala de lo penal): Colonel Guillermo Alfredo Benavides Moreno, former director of the military school; Sergeant Ramiro Ávalos Vargas; Sergeant Tomás Zárpate Castillo and Corporal Ángel Pérez Vásquez.

On 13 July 2016 the Salvadoran Supreme Court ruled that the Amnesty Law adopted after the conflict was unconstitutional. Yet, on 18 and 26 August 2016, the extradition requests from Spain for the four accused were respectively denied on 18 and 26 August 2016. They were released from detention. The Salvadoran Supreme Court decided that Benavides should nonetheless be held in prison to complete a 30 years sentence he received in El Salvador in 1991 for murder and terrorism.

Current status

Under investigation

Facts

From 1980 to 1992, El Salvador was divided by an internal armed conflict between the rebel Farabundo Martí National Liberation Front (FMLN) and the Government, led by the Nationalist Republican Alliance (ARENA). In this context, on 16 November 1989, six Jesuit priests, their housekeeper and her 16 year old daughter were killed at the Pastoral centre of José Simeón Cañas Central American University in San Salvador.

Following the ratification of the Chapultepec Peace Accords on 16 January 1992, a Truth Commission was established to investigate crimes committed during the war. The Truth Commission investigated the murder of the six Jesuits, their housekeeper and her daughter. It concluded that these crimes were ordered by Salvadoran officials and executed by the Salvadoran armed forces.

Procedure

On 13 November 2008, the Spanish Association for Human Rights (APDHE) and the Centre for Justice and Accountability (CJA) filed a complaint before the Spanish National Court against former Salvadoran President Alfredo Cristiani Burkard and fourteen former military officers and soldiers.

On 13 January 2009, Judge Eloy Velasco charged fourteen former officers, including Colonel Ponce, former head of the Armed Forces at the time of the murders, General Rafael Humberto Larios, former Minister of Defence, Colonel Juan Orlando Zepeda, former Vice Minister of Defence, and Colonel Inocente Orlando Montano, former Vice Minister for Public Safety, with murder, crimes against humanity and terrorism. On 30 May 2011, six new defendants were added to the indictment, and international arrest warrants were issued. One of the defendants, Colonel Ponce, died of a heart attack in May 2011.

On 6 October 2014, the criminal chamber of the Spanish National Court ruled that Spain has jurisdiction to investigate and to prosecute the murder of the six Jesuits and their employees as a crime against humanity and for terrorism.

On 16 December 2015, Judge Eloy Velasco issued a new international arrest warrant against suspects in El Salvador.

On 4 January 2016, the Spanish judge sent a request for a Red Notice to Interpol, requesting the arrest of 17 former soldiers allegedly involved in the murders of the Jesuits.

Four of the accused were arrested in February 2016. They were released in October 2016 as the Salvadoran Supreme Court ruled that the Amnesty Law was unconstitutional.

Developments in 2016

On 26 February 2016, the Court of Appeal annulled the decision of first instance and ordered a new trial, after a Swedish journalist had identified a previously unknown victim (see below).

On 11 May 2016, the District Court in Huddinge dismissed the war crime charge as it found that there was no nexus, after it emerged that the victim was not a pro-regime soldier but a member of the FSA, like Droubi himself. The court sentenced Droubi to 7 years imprisonment for aggravated assault. The court also ordered his deportation as soon as he has served his sentence and banned him from the country for life.

On 5 August 2016, the Svea Court of Appeal overturned this decision, considering that the crime denounced must be qualified as a war crime and aggravated assault. Mouhannad Droubi was sentenced to 8 years of imprisonment and the Court ordered his deportation as soon as he has served his sentence and banned him from the country for life.

Current status

Sentenced to 8 years imprisonment for war crimes and aggravated assault. The decision is final.

Facts

In spring 2012, Mouhannad Droubi was recruited by the FSA, an armed group taking part in the Syrian civil war between the Syrian government and several armed groups. In June 2012, Mouhannad Droubi and other FSA militants allegedly assaulted a man formerly affiliated with the Syrian state's armed forces. The victim was repeatedly hit and kicked in the head and on the body with a truncheon, a whip, a pair of pliers and with bare hands. The assault was recorded and later uploaded on Mohannad Droubi Facebook page. →

Procedure

Mouhannad Droubi arrived in Sweden as a refugee in September 2013. He was granted asylum status and a permanent residency in December 2013. In 2014, Swedish police discovered Mouhannad Droubi's video of the assault. He was arrested in Sweden on 4 October 2014 and indicted on 2 February 2015.

His trial before the Södertörn District Court began on 10 February 2015 and lasted two days. Mouhannad Droubi pleaded not guilty to the charges. On 26 February 2015, he was convicted of "extremely gross assault and violation of international law" for violating the Common article 3 of the Geneva Conventions, and customary international humanitarian law. He was sentenced to five years in prison, and appealed the judgment.

The authorities had discovered incriminating photos during a separate investigation into a robbery, for which Raed Abdulkareem is currently serving a 42-month sentence.

The 24-year old admitted to being in the photos but denied any wrongdoing, claiming he had been forced to pose for them. However, on 6 December 2016, Raed Abdulkareem was found guilty of war crimes and sentenced to 6 months imprisonment by the Blekinge District Court.

The judgment has been appealed both by the prosecutors and the defendant.

KHALED NEZZAR

Context

Ongoing proceedings against the former Algerian Minister of Defence for alleged war crimes, committed in Algeria between 1992 and 1994.

Suspects

General in the Algerian army, Minister of Defence in Algeria from 1990 to 1994 and Member of the High Council of State (HCS) from 1992 to 1994.

Country of residence of suspects

Algeria

Charges

Various war crimes: torture, extrajudicial killings, enforced disappearances and other grave breaches of international humanitarian law

Developments in 2016

Early January 2017, the Office of the Attorney General (MPC) of Switzerland dismissed the case, considering that the alleged acts committed by the former Minister of Defense could not be considered as war crimes on the grounds that there was no war in Algeria when the facts occurred.

On 18 January 2017, the civil parties appealed the decision before the Federal Criminal Court.

Facts

From 1992 to 1994, as Minister of Defence and member of the HCS, Khaled Nezzar allegedly incited, authorized and ordered military and public agents to commit acts of torture, murders, extrajudicial killings, enforced disappearances and other grave violations of international humanitarian law. The dirty war caused the death of around 200'000 persons, and the disappearance of some 20'000 others.

Procedure

Three torture victims filed a first complaint against Khaled Nezzar in France in 2001, but he managed to leave the country before judicial action could be initiated. In October 2011, TRIAL filed a new criminal complaint as he was travelling to Geneva. Two victims of torture joined the procedure. He was arrested in October 2011 and interrogated by the Swiss Attorney General. He appealed the procedure before the Federal Criminal Court. In a decision from 25 July 2012, Khaled Nezzar's appeal was rejected: the court considered that immunities could not be invoked for international crimes.

Early January 2017, the case was dismissed. The civil parties appealed this decision.

ACTIVE PERSONALITY: LAST RECOURSE FOR ERWIN SPERISEN

Context

Ongoing proceedings for serious crimes under international law allegedly committed in Guatemala in 2005 and 2006.

Suspect

Head of National Civilian Police (NCP) of Guatemala from 2004 to 2007. He has dual Swiss and Guatemalan citizenship.

Country of residence of suspects

Switzerland

Charges

Extrajudicial executions in 2005 (the killing of three inmates who had escaped from the Infiernito prison) and in 2006 (the killing of seven inmates at the Pavón prison) in Guatemala.

Current status

Appeal pending before the Swiss Federal Tribunal

Developments in 2016

Erwin Sperisen remains detained in Champ-Dollon prison in Geneva, where he is awaiting the decision in his ongoing appeal before the Swiss Federal Tribunal. The defense lodged an appeal in 2015, arguing that the first and second instance proceedings had violated fair trial standards.

Facts

In October 2005, nineteen prisoners escaped from Infiernito, a high security prison in Guatemala City. Erwin Sperisen allegedly set up a plan aimed at finding and executing the escaped prisoners; this was known as the "Gavilan Plan". Nine prisoners were captured and three allegedly executed as a result.

In September 2006, Erwin Sperisen, along with 3000 NCP officers and members of the army, intervened in the Pavón prison, a high security prison controlled by prisoners, to restore State authority. This intervention ended in the arrest and the alleged extra-judicial execution of seven prisoners.

Procedure

In 2008, several Swiss organizations filed a criminal complaint against Erwin Sperisen with the Office of the Prosecutor in Geneva, after discovering that he was living in Switzerland. He was arrested on 31 August 2012 in Geneva. In March 2013, the mother of one of the victims filed a complaint and joined the criminal proceedings. Fourteen witnesses travelled from Spain, France and Guatemala to be heard by the Swiss authorities.

His trial opened on 15 May 2014 in Geneva. He was convicted on 6 June 2014 and sentenced to life imprisonment for the crimes he committed in the Pavón prison, but he was acquitted for his alleged involvement in the "Gavilan Plan".

Erwin Sperisen appealed the conviction and his appeal trial took place from 4 to 8 May 2015 before the Criminal Chamber of the Geneva Court of Appeal. On 12 May 2015, the criminal Chamber upheld the life imprisonment sentence. In addition to the seven extra-judicial executions for which Erwin Sperisen was found guilty in the first instance, he was condemned for the murder of three fugitives from the prison "El Infiernito" as jointly responsible, but not as a direct perpetrator.

Arguing that his right to a fair trial had been violated, Erwin Sperisen lodged an appeal against the conviction, which is currently pending before the Criminal Chamber of the Swiss Federal Tribunal in Lausanne.

ALI BIN FADHUL AL-BUAINAIN

Context

Ongoing proceedings against the Attorney General of Bahrain for torture allegedly committed in Bahrain in 2010.

Suspect

Attorney General of Bahrain, Vice-President of the International Association of Prosecutors (IAP) Executive Committee.

Country of residence of suspects

Bahrain

Charges

Torture

Developments in 2016

In June 2016, torture survivor Jaafar Al-Hasabi gave testimony to prosecutors in Bern concerning the Bahraini Attorney General's alleged complicity in acts of torture. In November 2016, the Swiss prosecutors made an application to the Federal Office of Justice (FOJ) seeking to transfer the case to prosecution authorities in Bahrain. Representatives for the complainant are challenging this move.

Ali Bin Fadhul Al-Buainain was expected to visit Ireland to attend a conference in Dublin between 11 and 16 September 2016. Before this visit, Jaafar Al-Hasabi made an application to the District Court in Dublin on 13 September 2016 requesting that the Attorney General be summoned in connection with the allegations of torture. The complaint was rejected, with the judge arguing that a sufficient link between the acts of torture and the alleged involvement of the accused had not been established.

The Irish police opened a parallel investigation into the matter that is still ongoing. Mr Jaafar Al-Hasabi's complaint was supported by the NGOs GLAN (Global Legal Action Network), BIRD (Bahrain Institute for Rights and Democracy) ECCHR and REDRESS.

Current status

Under investigation

Facts

Jaafar Al-Hasabi, a British citizen born in Bahrain, was detained and tortured in Bahrain in 2010. He and 22 other political activists were arrested and charged with belonging to a "terrorist network" aiming to overthrow the government. The group of detainees became known as "the Bahraini 23".

During his incommunicado detention, Jaafar Al-Hasabi was subjected to electric shocks, beatings on the soles of the feet and stress positions. Despite the fact that the United Nations expressed their concerns regarding Jaafar Al-Hasabi's secret detention and the risk that he could endure torture, the Attorney General of Bahrain authorized the extension of his detention.

Procedure

On 8 September 2015, Jaafar Al-Hasabi filed a criminal complaint in Bern against the Attorney General of Bahrain, Ali Bin Fadhul Al-Buainain, for facilitating torture. He was supported by ECCHR, REDRESS, BIRD and TRIAL International. On 13 September 2015, an application was filed with the Bern prosecutor, calling for the Attorney General to be summoned for interviewing. The complaint was filed in anticipation of his attendance at the IAP's annual conference being held that year in Switzerland from 13 to 17 September, at which he was elected vice president of the organization.

On 15 September 2015, the prosecutor issued a decision stating that an investigation would be opened but that the evidentiary threshold for a summons had not yet been met. Ali Bin Fadhul Al-Buainain was allowed to return to Bahrain without questioning.

Current status

Detained; on trial

Facts

In 1974, the Communist military regime, known as the Dergue, overthrew the Emperor Haile Selassie I and seized power in Ethiopia. The regime effectively ruled the country for 17 years. ### COLONEL KUMAR LAMA

Context

Trial of a former Nepali State official for torture allegedly committed in Nepal in 2005, during a non-international armed conflict.

Suspect

Colonel in the Nepalese Army and Senior Military Liaison Officer with the United Nations Mission in South Sudan.

Country of residence of suspects

Nepal

Charges

Torture

Developments in 2016

On 2 August 2016, a jury acquitted Kumar Lama of one of the two counts of torture he was facing. The jury could not reach a verdict on the other count of torture. On 6 September 2016, he was acquitted of all charges.

Current status

Acquitted

Facts

Colonel Kumar Lama was accused of having participated in the torture of two detainees at an army barracks that were under his command in 2005. The torture was alleged to have taken place during the nine-year-long internal armed conflict between the Nepali Government and Maoist Insurgents.

The conflict ended in 2006 following the signing of a Comprehensive Peace Agreement. Since the end of the conflict, no effective action has been taken and impunity remains deeply entrenched for serious human rights violations committed during the conflict.

Procedure

Colonel Kumar Lama was arrested in the United Kingdom on 3 January 2013 when he was on leave from United Nations peacekeeping duty in South Sudan. His lawyers argued that he could not be prosecuted as he was entitled to immunity as a United Nations peacekeeper, and as he had already been convicted and punished in Nepal under the Nepalese Torture Compensation Act. The Court of Appeal rejected both arguments. Kumar Lama was released on bail on 15 March 2013 and remained in the UK during his trial.

The Metropolitan Police's investigation into the crimes allegedly committed by Kumar Lama was closed in 2014. His trial began on 24 February 2015 in London, before the Old Bailey (London's central criminal court). His trial was subsequently adjourned on 17 March 2015 because of problems with interpreters. The trial re-started on 6 June 2016. After eight weeks of evidence and argument, the jury acquitted him on one charge, but could not reach a verdict on the second count. On 5 September 2016, the Crown Prosecution Service told the trial judge that it would not proceed with a re-trial on this second charge, and the following day the accused was acquitted on that count, too.

Suspects

Israeli former foreign minister and deputy prime minister

Country of residence of suspects

Israel

Charges

War crimes and violations of the Geneva Conventions

Current status

Closed investigation

Developments in 2016

On 30 June 2016, Tzipi Livni was summoned for questioning by the British Police, while she was visiting London for a conference organized by Haaretz Newspaper and the British Jewish community. The summons was issued to question Tzipi Livni about suspected war crimes and violations of the Geneva Conventions committed during the 2008–2009 Operation Cast Lead. After diplomatic talks, the summons was withdrawn and Tzipi Livni was granted special diplomatic immunity.

In January 2017, Tzipi Livni canceled a trip to Belgium as a domestic Court had ordered her arrested for interrogation regarding her involvement in the Operation Cast Lead.

Facts

From 27 December 2008 to 18 January 2009, Israel launched Operation Cast Lead, a military assault on the Gaza Strip. The operation started with a week of intense aerial bombing followed by two weeks of a joint air and land assault. It is reported that around 1'400 Palestinians, mostly civilians, were killed during Operation Cast Lead. At the time, Tzipi Livni was Israel's foreign Minister and a member of the Prime Minister Ehud Olmert's security cabinet and allegedly played a key role in the decisions made before and during the three-week offensive.

Procedure

In 2009, the Palestinian Centre for Human Rights (PCHR) filed 490 criminal complaints to the Israeli Military Prosecutor against senior Israeli officials, including Tzipi Livni, for the alleged war crimes committed during the Operation Cast Lead. No investigations were opened.

On 12 December 2009, at the request of lawyers representing Palestinian victims, a British court issued an arrest warrant against Tzipi Livni. The warrant was withdrawn on 14 December 2009 after it was confirmed she would not be visiting the United Kingdom.

In October 2011, the PCHR and the British law firm Hickman & Rose, acting on behalf of Palestinian victims, requested the arrest of Tzipi Livni as she was visiting the country. The Foreign and Commonwealth Office granted her diplomatic immunity, preventing her arrest.

PASSIVE PERSONALITY : HOLDING ASSAD'S REGIME RESPONSIBLE FOR WAR CRIMES ?

Marie Colvin, a renowned American war correspondent, was covering the siege of Homs, Syria, for London's Sunday Times newspaper in early 2012. She was killed in an attack against a media centre carried out by Syrian government forces on 22 February 2012. The French photographer Rémi Ochlik was also killed in the attack, and three others were injured.

On 9 July 2016, the Center for Justice & Accountability (CJA) and co-counsel Shearman & Sterling LLP filed a lawsuit against the government of Syria for the murder of Marie Colvin, on behalf of Colvin's family. The suit was filed in the U.S. District Court of Columbia under the Foreign Sovereign Immunities Act (FSIA), a federal law that allows victims to sue designated state-sponsors of terrorism, including Syria, for the murder of U.S. citizens.

The complaint names nine Syrian officials and agents – including Ali Mamluk, Director of Syria's National Intelligence Bureau; Rafiq Shahadah, former Director of Military Intelligence; and Major General Issam Zahreddine of the Republican Guard – who allegedly planned and authorised the attack on Marie Colvin and other journalists.

UNIVERSAL JURISDICTION AT A GLANCE

What is universal jurisdiction?

A State is usually competent to judge crimes if they have been committed on its territory, or by or against its citizens. However, some international crimes are so serious that they constitute offenses against all humankind, thereby warranting special measures.

Among these measures is the principle of universal jurisdiction, based on the notion that the fight against impunity is borderless. Under this principle, States have the option – and at times the obligation – to prosecute alleged criminals who are on their territory, regardless of where the crimes may have been committed or of the nationality of the perpetrators and the victims.

The crimes covered by this principle include genocide, crimes against humanity, war crimes, torture and enforced disappearances. Universal jurisdiction, is a powerful tool in the service of international justice, and is gaining increasing credence through the recognition that the fight against impunity has no borders.

How has this principle evolved through time?

Universal jurisdiction did not come into being overnight, but started to gain acceptance in the aftermath of the Second World War. It acquired further recognition in the four Geneva Conventions of 12 August 1949, aimed at protecting populations in armed conflict. These rules, which are still applicable today, commit States to prosecuting and punishing the perpetrators of serious crimes, even if they are committed outside the territory of the State in question.

With time, this principle was further consolidated and reinforced through other international conventions, in particular the UN Convention Against Torture (1984) and the UN Convention Against Enforced Disappearance (2006), which oblige States parties to prosecute or extradite suspects of these crimes.

On 17 July 1998, a further advance was made with the signing of the Rome Statute of the International Criminal Court, which provided for a permanent international Court responsible for prosecuting individuals who commit serious international crimes, which can exercise its jurisdiction only if States are unable or unwilling to investigate or prosecute those persons alleged to be responsible for crimes enshrined in the Rome Statute. The principle of complementarity has reinforced expectations on national justice systems to play a central role in the fight against impunity.

The obligation to extradite or prosecute has today acquired a solid foundation in international law.

Landmark cases

Far from being an abstract principle, universal jurisdiction has already opened the way for concrete improvements in international justice. Many States have initiated proceedings on the basis of this principle: Australia, Canada, the United States Denmark, France, Germany, the United Kingdom, Israel, Switzerland, Belgium, the Netherlands, Sweden, etc. Famous milestones include the following cases.

AUGUSTO PINOCHET

Chile/United Kingdom
arrested in 1998

It was with the arrest of Augusto Pinochet that universal jurisdiction became widely known. The former head of the Chilean military junta and former president was arrested in London on 16 October 1998. The Spanish judge Baltasar Garzon requested that he be extradited to Spain, invoking the principle of universal jurisdiction. This request was granted. In the end, the extradition did not take place due the suspect's ill health, and Pinochet returned unimpeded to Chile. Even though justice was not served, it was the first time that a State former President had been arrested on the basis of this principle.

HISSÈNE HABRÉ

Chad/Senegal
Trial from 2015 to 2016

Hissène Habré's regime is considered to have committed hundreds of thousands of crimes in Chad between 1982 and 1990. Following his overthrow, the former dictator sought refuge in Senegal. He was indicted there in 2013 for crimes against humanity, torture and war crimes. After a lengthy judicial procedure, he was finally sentenced in 2016 to life imprisonment for war crimes, crimes against humanity, torture and sexual crimes, including rape and sexual slavery. His appeal trial took place in January 2017 and the verdict is expected in late April 2017. This is the first trial based on universal jurisdiction to have been conducted in Africa.
